Objective

Digital advancement has resulted in smaller world with the global community witnessing near lightning speed of internet and communication between peers. With the boon comes the curse in the form of data theft, which can be addressed using proper security measures, particularly information security. Theft of data over internet resulted in millions being vulnerable without their knowledge. This is the reason that the domain of cyber security has gained enormous attention among the global research community within the last few years. Information security and cyber security go hand in hand in this endeavour. Although both enjoy a vast domain within themselves, they are often used synonymously with each other. This convention is an attempt to share the latest achievements in security and cyber-security with clear understanding of the underlying definitions for both – Security and Cyber Security.
